Q: pcapy does not support IPv6 I know that pcapy has been deprecated in favor of pycap. However, it seems to only support the IPv4 protocols. Specifically, I try to receive/re-send the ICMPv6 Messages, but I get this error: capi.error: [Errno 2] No such file or directory: 'ip6.arp If I do not use a version of Windows that supports IPv6,

I can still send/receive IPv6 messages using the following: import os import socket sock = socket.socket(socket.AF_INET6, socket.SOCK_RAW,socket.IPPROTO_ICMPV6) sock.bind(('', 2000)) But I want to know if there is a way to fix it. As a side note, the version of pcapy installed on my system is 0.5.4 A: The program that runs the pcapy script was updated (as of Python 2.6) to ignore any pcap files that are named with the ".pcap" suffix. /*****
