What's new in Elden Ring:

Visit the development pages on Popcorn.

Why we love it - a beautifully simple product with the added luxury of functioning as an in-built hairdryer that will be useful for years to come. It's a new Philips model and it includes a long-life lithium ion battery (estimated life up to two years) which has a powerful 1200w motor that's equipped with an 'anti-noise flap'. It also features an auto shut-off button which helps reduce energy consumption. It also features a steam function, which shoots out mist at a variety of points on the on-screen display for precise styling. Why we liked it• The product looks absolutely lovely but its equally practical functionality makes it a must-have. • The mist spray is incredibly effective. • The product is easy to clean and hygienic for long-life. • As batteries need charging during use, they're easy to carry around with you. • It's a useful product and an excellent buy for your home. • This one's going to be useful and long-lasting - a true money-saver to have to buy new from time to time. What it's like to use -The nozzle features a safety cover in case it gets dropped and is easily put down on your shoulder to apply additional pressure to the hair. Useful for... • Getting rid of frizz, over-bleaching after the sun or creating a heat-protection layer on frizzy hair • drying wet hair on its own (when you have a shower/bathroom problem) • adding body to limp, flat or fine hair • damage control for hair that's prone to taking off. Designer details- The setting of the mist is adjustable and also features a built-in vibrating button to keep hair tangle-free- Even on in-built 2.0 AH80 mode it will still be loud, so we've enclosed this description of the noise, vis over your shoulder- This could be a two-part review article but even so, we'll discuss what the product sounds like in use here (useful for when you're wearing thick tights so you can hear what it's doing)- The buttons on the trimmer have been moved to below the handle, less chance of pressing one accidentally!
