To start off, you need to choose from one of four choices of hospital. Unlike in "Nope Nurses" there's no limit in which hospital you can play, but it would only be fair to start off with the weakest of the bunch. For this character you get stats that are perfect for a nurses. You have Strength: 5 Attack: 5 Attack Power: 2 Debuffer: 4 Defense: 7 Defense Power: 5 Speed: 5 The rules are the same as in the first game, except you now begin at level 1. However, both in the first and second games you will earn prize money depending on how you improve. The amount of prize money you get increases along with your levels, but by the time you reach level 8 you will already have achieved enough prize money to buy most of the perks. The only exception to this is when you level 5 in either case you will automatically get the ring, glove and goggles but it's also possible to unlock them at certain levels as well. As for the perks, they are pretty self explanatory. The main perk that the ring offers is more strength as well as a chance to get BAGS. In order to get BAGS all you have to do is get a random item that you can equip in the bag, drop it and then go to the bag to open it up. You will notice a + symbol on each item, this means that every time you open up that bag you will get one more item that is +. Now the bonus items can be anything from new bonuses or new places that you can visit, to items that you get if you level up your skills to that point. There are basically 4 categories for the items that you get, access, skills and quest. Access items are those that you can equip on your player, and you get those randomly once you open up a bag. Skills are items that you can use as you please, but for a cost, just like the ring in the first game. In this game you can buy these items for real money. Quest items are the biggest of the four types, these can be accessed through only being in the right hospital or visiting certain places. Once you have all the items that are + you will be able to go out and do more challenges. This can range from saving people, to breaking things, to doing interrogation. For getting the best out of each challenge your nurses are going to be your best friend. You can have one nurse doing a challenge, or (VR Games) VRy is a multimodal interface/driver for Steam VR development on PlayStation 4 PlayStation TV PS Vita and PlayStation VR. It is available free for developers and researchers. There are tutorials available to get you started quickly. It's written by Daan Jansen (look him up) and is inspired by the Unity driver for Vive on Steam VR Home. About This is a tool for SteamVR development. It provides: A C++ API for sending and receiving events from 3rd party libraries like input. A plugin for SteamVR that allows your game to integrate with SteamVR. Adjustment of input expectations so that your game can run perfectly on both consoles and PC and on platforms requiring different input handling. The library and plugin maintain a (semi)distributed architecture for maximum flexibility. Some parts are not fully polished yet, but the code as stated is all new and checked in to GitHub. Documentation Please also check out the documentation. How to add support for your SteamVR Library You can find a steamvr.h in the main binary folder in the documentation in the steamvr/sdk folder. Most people will probably have to use one of the included hand-made SteamVR plugins. For SteamVR 2.0, the plugin as shipped with the library are very stable. Also see the documentation page. Examples I like to list a few examples: An Example application running on SteamVR with the library. Code Repository The code may be found on GitHub here. Contact If you have any issues, suggestions, or just want to say hi, you can reach me on Twitter. Feedback A big thank you to everyone who has been taking the time to check out the lib.

Licensed dealers previously could sell as many as 50 rounds of ammo to law-abiding people when all of their relatives were in the same
