Does Valentine's Day matter? To married people, probably not as much as other holidays, including birthdays, as they get to spend more time with their spouse than they did on other days of the year, according to a recent report in Science. "What does Valentine's Day mean to someone who is married? It means something to them," said Stephanie Coontz, director of research at the Council on Contemporary Families. But not always. The percentage of marriages in the United States that are getting more durable and lasting, in terms of higher-quality relationships, has been slow to increase over the past few decades, a recent study in the Archives of Sexual Behavior by Coontz and Andrea Adamczyk of the University of British Columbia found. Researchers define high-quality marriages as those in which happiness, commitment and affection are prominent. The percentage of marriages in which happiness, commitment and affection are prominent has been on a slow and steady decline since the 1970s, the study found. Science recently put the number of U.S. marriages of that type at 66 percent.

Q: Does God know about the time and date of an individual's death? I know that God knows when we will die since he knows everything. So does he have a clock that can tell him the day and time of our death? A: This is a common question among many Jews in the U.S. The answer is relatively straightforward, though most Jews hesitate to give it. Teshuva was on Yeshiva University's website. The answer is as follows: In Jewish thought, the understanding of eschatology as the study of fileinfo.com With the recent discovery of Hydrothermal vents on the sea floor near the Galapagos Islands, we take an in-depth look at another potential source of hydrocarbon energy. H₂, the primary fuel source for combustion engines, is made of hydrogen and carbon, and its main uses are to provide energy, or fuels. The highest-grade oil on the market comes from mid-ocean ridges, where hot plumes of water are shooting up from the basalt layer of the sea floor. Today, most of the high-grade natural resources on Earth come from these deep reservoirs. But what if we could tap into the ultimate natural energy source? The Galapagos Islands are a volcanic archipelago in the Pacific Ocean that contains plenty of natural resources. Though the archipelago is located much closer to the equator, it has a record of breaking the surface

The study of life stressors may help in the development of methods for prevention. Among patients with coronary artery disease (CAD) and impaired mental health, the presence of a history of life stressful events is associated with a higher prevalence of a self reported myocardial infarction, while the incidence of cardiac events is negatively affected by mental health. Stressful events are more frequent in patients
